1. Your Writing Tribe, Team, Community

Do you already have a writing tribe, team, and/or community? Describe them below. If you participate in more than one writing group or activity, name each one and list how you participate. You can also add to your list later as you build your team.

Local or online writers' group(s):
Feedback/critique group(s):
Writing course group(s):
Accountability partner(s):

Alpha reader? Beta readers:
Any writing coach, editor, designer, agent, traditional publisher, and/or other writing professional(s) you have worked with:
Writing events you have attended (conferences, retreats, workshops, etc.) where you've learned more about writing and have networked with other writers:
Social media and/or blog followers and fans:

Putting your notes into practice:

If you don't yet have a writing tribe, team, or community, look at the list above. Choose groups you think you might like to be involved in. Do some research (in my blog <https://normajhill.com/> and/or on other writing blogs; in Facebook and other social media writers' groups/pages; in books about writing and publishing).

Then list team members you think would be most helpful at this point in your writing journey. Find at least one group, person, and/or activity, and sign up right now. Start building your writing team!

Don't forget to place this exercise in your "Writing Life" binder or duotang.
